Muskingum County's Heritage

Discover the Past, Present & Future

In the 1790s, a settlement was established at the confluence of the Licking and Muskingum Rivers as Colonel Ebenezer Zane and his son-in-law John McIntire blazed Zane's Trace, the original pioneer trail into the old Northwest Territory. Zane, a Revolutionary War veteran, was commissioned by the U.S. Congress to blaze a pathway into the rolling hills and the dense forests of the Ohio Valley and establish ferry crossings at three major rivers including the Muskingum. A town laid out by McIntire called Westborne quickly grew out of the settlement and in 1801 it was renamed Zanesville in honor of Colonel Zane. Zanesville served as the capital of Ohio from 1810 to 1812.

Transportation continued to play a key role in the rich history and development of the community. Zane's Trace later became the National Road, the first federally-funded highway in America. For several decades the National Road was America's busiest land artery to the West, the "Main Street of America" that opened the heart of a nation.

In 1814, the city's well known Y-shaped bridge was initially constructed to cross the junction of the Licking and Muskingum rivers in the center of Zanesville. Since the early 1800s, the Y Bridge has received worldwide attention. Ripley's Believe it or Not featured Zanesville's Y Bridge as "the only bridge in the world which you can cross and still be on the same side of the river." Today, residents rely on the Y Bridge for everyday transportation.

Nature granted Zanesville other advantages as well, rich natural resources such as sand, clay and iron made Zanesville and Muskingum County ideal for the manufacturing of steel, glass and pottery. In fact, the clay resources allowed Zanesville to become known as the "Pottery Capital of the World."

In southeast Ohio, pottery started as a raw material, clay taken from the ground by pioneers and farmers who used it to make practical household items. It grew into an entire industry with skilled craftsmen, the descendants of those

Guided by animal management staff, the tour accommodates a maximum of six guests on comfortable seats in the back of an open animal management truck. A walking trail leads through prairie, wetland, and woodland habitats. pottery

In southeastern Ohio, pottery started as a raw material, clay taken from the ground by pioneers and farmers who used it to make practical household items. It grew into an entire industry with skilled craftsmen – the descendants of those pioneers – hand making and painting attractive dinnerware, delicate art pottery, sturdy stoneware crocks and decorative ceramic tile.

Pottery has evolved into a popular consumer good made by modern manufacturing facilities – still employing those skilled craftsmen – and shipped around the world. Antique art pottery pieces, those produced in the early part of the century by the original firms and their creative decorators, have become valuable collectibles. Pottery is still made today in the communities of Muskingum and Perry counties and has become a proud symbol of our local heritage and culture; it has become our tradition. Pottery is such an important part of our heritage that the communities in our area celebrate every year in July with “Pottery Lovers Week” when we host several conventions, festivals, auctions and other pottery-related events. Join us and experience why pottery has made us famous.
